

MaaS360 Expedition

How the website works, and how to use it as a new hire.

Read this first

Part 1 explains what the site is and how the pieces fit together — about five minutes. Part 2 walks through using it day to day, from your first sign-in to finishing the programme. If you only read one part, read Part 2.

| Part   | What it covers                                                                   | Who it's for |
|--------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Part 1 | How the website works: the pieces, where your progress goes, who can see what.   | Everyone     |
| Part 2 | Using the site: signing in, working through a task, unlocking phases, reminders. | New hires    |

PART 1

How the website works

The MaaS360 Expedition is an onboarding programme laid out as a mountain climb. It contains nine phases and 76 tasks. You work through them in order, and the site keeps track of exactly where you are.

The three pieces

There are three moving parts. As an employee you only ever interact with the first.

These three work together. You only ever touch the first one — the other two run by themselves in the background.

What happens when you tick something

Every checkbox you tick is saved to your account the moment you click it.

Nothing to save, submit or send. Ticking the box is the whole action.

Where your progress lives

Your progress is stored against your account in the cloud, not on the computer you happen to be using. Sign in on a different machine and everything follows you — the tasks you have completed, the phases you have unlocked, and your place on the trail. There is no save button anywhere on the site, because there is nothing to save manually.

Who can see what

|                                | You | Your manager |
|--------------------------------|-----|--------------|
| Your progress and quiz results | Yes | Yes          |
| Other people's progress        | No  | Yes          |

|                           |                                          |                            |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| Your written reflections  | Yes                                      | Not shown in the dashboard |
| Your password             | Only you — it is never visible to anyone | No                         |
| Phase dates and deadlines | View                                     | View and edit              |

Reminders

The site sends scheduled email reminders — a midweek nudge partway through each phase, an alert if a phase runs past its due date, and a note to your manager when you finish a phase. These are sent by a service that runs on a schedule in the cloud, so they arrive whether or not you have the site open. You do not need to do anything to receive them.

Your manager can adjust your dates

If you are away, or a phase realistically needs longer, your manager can move your start and due dates. The reminders follow the new dates automatically. Ask them rather than working to a deadline that no longer makes sense.

PART 2

Using the site as a new hire

This is everything you need, in the order you will need it.

Step 1 — Create your account

- Open the site link your manager sent you and choose Create account.
- Enter your name, work email, and a password of at least eight characters. You will be asked to type the password twice — the second box confirms it matches, and shows a green tick when it does.
- Add your manager's email so your progress notices reach the right person.
- If a confirmation email arrives, click the link in it, then sign in.

From then on you just sign in. Your progress is tied to this account, so use the same one every time.

Step 2 — The Trailhead

Signing in brings you to the Trailhead: the map of all nine phases. Each card shows the phase name, how far through it you are, and whether it is open or still locked. Phases unlock one at a time — finish the one you are on and the next opens. Locked phases cannot be opened early, and that is deliberate: each phase builds on the one before it.

The sidebar on the left is always available. It shows every phase, your overall progress, My Timeline (your dates), and the Gear Room (links and tools).

Step 3 — Working through a task

Open a phase and you will see its task cards. Each task has four sections, and they unlock in order.

Sections unlock in order — finish one to open the next.

Learn

Short explanatory cards. Open each one — opening it marks it read, and the section completes when you have opened them all.

Practice

A checklist of things to actually do: open a portal, run a command, ask your buddy something. Do them for real, then tick each one. Some tasks also embed a video or a walkthrough here.

Assess

A short quiz. You need 70% to pass, and you can retake it as many times as you like — it is there to check your understanding, not to catch you out. Some questions ask for a written reflection instead; those are for your own thinking and are not marked.

Apply

A realistic scenario that puts the task to work. Do it, then mark it complete. This is the part that makes the knowledge stick, so it is worth not rushing.

Step 4 — Finishing a phase

When every task in a phase is complete, three things happen automatically: the phase shows as complete on the Trailhead, the next phase unlocks, and your manager is emailed to let them know. There is nothing to submit.

Step 5 — Keeping to the schedule

Each phase is normally allotted about a week. You can see your own dates any time under My Timeline in the sidebar: when each phase started, its midweek check-in, and when it is due.

| What you will receive              | When                                      |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|
| A midweek check-in reminder        | Partway through each phase                |
| An overdue notice                  | If a phase passes its due date unfinished |
| (Your manager) a completion notice | Each time you finish a phase              |

Step 6 — If something goes wrong

| Situation                         | What to do                                                                                                                      |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| You cannot sign in                | Use the same email you registered with. If a confirmation email never arrived, check spam, then ask your manager to re-send it. |
| Your progress looks empty         | Check you are signed in — your name appears at the bottom of the sidebar. Progress is tied to your account, not the browser.    |
| A phase is locked and you need it | Finish the phase before it. If you genuinely need to work out of order, ask your manager.                                       |
| You are behind schedule           | Tell your manager early. They can move your dates, and the reminders adjust automatically.                                      |
| Something on a page looks wrong   | Refresh the page first. If it persists, tell your manager so it can be fixed for everyone.                                      |

The one habit that matters

Tick things as you actually do them, not in a batch at the end of the week. The site's reminders, your manager's view of your progress, and your own sense of pace all depend on it being honest and current.

Quick reference

| Where            | What it is for                                        |
|------------------|-------------------------------------------------------|
| Trailhead (home) | The map of all nine phases and your overall progress. |
| A phase page     | The task cards for that phase.                        |
| A task page      | Learn, Practice, Assess and Apply for one topic.      |
| My Timeline      | Your phase dates: started, midweek check-in, due.     |
| Gear Room        | Links, tools and reference material.                  |
| Sidebar footer   | Who you are signed in as, and sign out.               |